FIFTH AVENUE CONFEREES.

How Ought Independent Reformers to Vote?

PARKE GODWIN REVIEWS THE POLITICAL SITUATION.

To the Editor of the Tribune:—Sir:—As one of the Executive Committee of the Conference held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel in May last, I desire to say a word to its members and constituents; I am led to it by the fact that several of my colleagues have already expressed opinions of the political situation with which I cannot agree. But a more powerful motive with me is the belief, that while the action of the Conference has had no little influence in shaping recent events, its adherents may do an infinity of greater good if they will continue to act in the spirit which brought them together, and which is seen in the manly words of their address to the people.

The call for that assembly, it may be remembered, was sent to men of all parties, who were interested enough in the correction of acknowledged abuses to cast off their party trammels and to act in a body as reformers. Mr. Carl Schurz, who initiated its proceedings by a brief speech, said that, in issuing the invitations, "no inquiry had been made as to any man's party connections, and only as to the sincerity of his faith. It was accordingly formed of no professed politicians, but of gentlemen of distinction in the various walks of life, who preferred country to party, and whose single aim was to rebuke, and to remove, that fearful decay of civic virtue which had come partly out of the war, but mainly from an utter perversion of politics, both in theory and practice. President Woolsey, on taking the chair, remarked that "for the last ten years the country had been growing politically worse, and that those who had acted with the dominant party had frequently had reason to blush with shame for its leaders." An address subsequently adopted by the Conference, as the declaration of its thought, more largely described the painful condition of things in these words:

A national election is approaching under circumstances of peculiar significance. Never before in our history has the public mind been so profoundly agitated by an apprehension of the dangers arising from the prevalence of corrupt tendencies and practices in our political life, and never has there been greater reason for it. We will not display here in detail, the distressing catalogue of the disclosures which for several years have followed one another in rapid succession, and seem to have left scarcely a single sphere of our political life untouched. The records of courts, of State Legislatures, and of the National Congress, speak with terrible plainness, and still they are adding to the scandalous exhibition. Our republic, but a century old, and just issued from the only great civil conflict we have had to deplore, is so strong in resources and organization that it stands in the foremost rank of the great powers of the earth; and yet, with all these special results on record, it cannot be denied that at no period during the century now behind us, the American people have been less satisfied with themselves; and that the centennial anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, in so many respects to all Americans a day of sincere pride and rejoicing, is felt to be in other respects not without self-reproach and humiliation. Of this the corruption revealed in our political life is the cause.

The thoughtful and conscientious men who gave utterance to this description had long observed the growing indifference to sound principles and the growing degeneracy in practice, and they asked themselves, What is to be done? They had seen, only a few years ago, in the metropolis of the continent, a horde of bandits possessing themselves of almost absolute power by the mere force of party machinery, and after gorging themselves with plunder to the amount of fifteen or twenty millions of dollars, fastening their own creatures upon legislatures, courts, and the Executive chair. They had seen the judiciary bench occupied by vulgar and venal scoundrels, who gave away their decisions as favors to accomplices or flatterers, or who sold them more or less openly for gold. They had seen a large number of the representatives of the people in the National Legislature, many of them prominent leaders, accepting gratuities in the shape of stock from the gigantic moneyed corporations to which they had voted, or might be called upon to vote, enormous subsidies out of the public lands; a Vice-President of the United States falling into disgrace because of his complicity. They had seen those same members of Congress, with others, at a time when the nation was groaning under an excessive taxation, voting themselves salaries for services which they had never rendered (from $2,060 to $5,000 each), and only giving them back, when they were given back at all, with reluctance—sometimes in ambiguous ways that would admit of future recovery, and at the rebuke of an outraged opinion and an indignant press. They had seen the Southern States, recently in revolt, seized upon by rapacious plunderers, who, on the pretext of protecting the rights of the freedmen, outraged all the rights and all the decencies of civilized society, and those once flourishing communities, now struggling to recover their lost prosperity, subjected to the degradations of the Eastern satrapy. They had seen the District of Columbia surrendered by the National Legislature to a conclave of peculators, who made themselves rich at the expense of the people by heaping debt and taxation upon the people, through a shameless perversion of all the duties of office. They had seen a wide-spread conspiracy for defrauding the revenue, with its principal agents in the revenue departments, and its accessories in the White House, arrested with difficulty by the courts, because of the intimate relations of the criminals with high political personages. They had seen an Embassador of the Republic, an intimate personal friend of the President, connecting his name as patron with a swindling mining company, and so lost to a sense of common decency, not to speak of personal and national honor, as to justify his conduct until rebuked by a vote of the House of Representatives. They had seen a Speaker of the House coquetting secretly with railroad jobbers, and evading inquiry now by disgraceful shifts and tricks, and now by audacious coups de theatre intended to baffle and mislead opinion by a false glare of frankness. They had seen, in the State of New York, the principal channel of communication between the water and the lakes in the hands of a combination of swindling contractors, professedly of both parties, who levied their blackmail indirectly upon the enterprise of the merchant and the hard toil of the farmer. They had seen the custom-houses in New York, New Orleans and elsewhere used as the asylums of political tricksters, who harried commerce by false accusations of fraud and irritating persecutions, as the citadel of soldiers whose arms were turned, at the will of those tricksters, against the lives of citizens who were honestly in the discharge of their duties as citizens. And, finally, they had seen a Cabinet Minister arraigned and impeached, on his own confessions, for conspiring with post-traders, who skinned the poor soldiers of the frontier, that the confederate felons might riot in ostentation and luxury at the Capitol.

Well might good and patriotic men everywhere ask, in view of these widespread venalities and scoundrelisms, What is to be done? It was suggested that the formation of a third party would in time meet the evil, and the Conference stood ready to become the nucleus of so forlorn a hope. But the more considerate members, discovering in the undisguised dissatisfaction of both the existing political organizations, the signs of a desire for improvement, counseled a waiting and expectant policy. It was resolved, in the first place, to make an earnest appeal to the people, in order to influence the Conventions about to assemble; and, in the second place, in the event that such an appeal should pass unheeded, to resort to ulterior measures.

That there might be no mistake as to its position, the Conference put forth this declaration, which we may call a New Declaration of Independence, in every way worthy of its predecessor and of this great Centennial year:

We therefore declare, and call upon all good citizens to join us in it, and that at the coming Presidential election we shall support no candidate who in public position ever countenanced corrupt practices or combinations, or impeded their exposure and punishment, or opposed necessary measures of reform.

We shall support, no candidate who, while possessing official influence and power, has failed to use his opportunities in exposing and correcting abuses coming within the reach of his observation, but for personal reasons and party ends has permitted them to fester on; for such men may be counted on not to uncover and crush corruption, but for the party's sake ready to conceal it.

We shall support no candidate, however conspicuous his position or brilliant his ability, in whom the impulses of the party manager have shown themselves predominant over those of the reformer; for he will be inclined to continue that fundamental abuse, the employment of the Government service, as a machinery for personal or party ends.

We shall support no candidate who, however favorably judged by his nearest friends, is not publicly known to possess those qualities of mind and character which the stern task of genuine reform requires: for the American people cannot now afford to risk the future of the Republic in experiments on merely supposed virtue or rumored ability to be trusted on the strength of private recommendations.

In one word, at present no candidate should be held entitled to the support of patriotic citizens of whom the question may fairly be asked: "Is he really the man to carry through a thorough-going reform of the government? Can he with certainty be depended upon to possess the moral courage and sturdy resolution to grapple with abuses which have acquired the strength of established custom, and to this end, firmly to resist the pressure of his party friends?" Whenever there is room for such a question (and doubt as to the answer) the candidate should be considered unfit for this emergency.

* * * * * * *

Every American citizen who has the future of the republic and the national honor sincerely at heart, should solemnly resolve that the country must have a President "whose name is already a watchword of reform: whose capacity and courage for the work are matters of record rather than of promise; who will restore the simplicity, independence and rectitude of the early administrations, and whose life will be a guaranty of his fidelity and fitness;" a man at the mere sound of whose name even the most disheartened will take new courage, and all mankind will say: "The Americans are indeed in earnest to restore the ancient purity of the government."

The first three paragraphs of this eloquent manifesto were intended to guard against the nomination of that class of aspirers to the highest office which was represented by Messrs. Blaine, Conkling and Morton, and the remaining paragraphs were expressly written and were understood to cover such mere makeshifts as Messrs. Hayes and Hartranft, one or the other of whom it was feared might be brought forward at the last moment as a compromise, and for the defeat of the friends of reform. I need hardly say that these ringing sentences, as they were read to the Conference by Mr. Schurz, were received and adopted in the sense here given them, amid the most tumultuous plaudits and congratulations.

Each man, as he heard the sentences, made the application, and cheered anew.

Let us now see how this plain and unambiguous manifesto was met by the respective Conventions.

The Cincinnati Convention met on the 15th of June, and was organized in the interests of Mr. Blaine, who was by far the most popular name presented to the suffrage of the Convention. Throughout the ballotings, Mr. Blaine, seriously smirched as he was by the recent publications of his overtures to jobbery, continued the leading candidate. Mr. Bristow, who, because of his courageous onslaught upon the Whiskey Ring, had become the standard-bearer of the reformers, only succeeded in getting, at the highest, 126 votes out of 756. The adherents of Blaine, Conkling and Morton were largely in the ascendant, and might at any time have determined the result. But they could not agree in their personal preferences, and then, after seven ballotings, at the instance of a notorious trading politician of Pennsylvania, Mr. Hayes of Ohio, whose only vote had been that of his own State, and a few individuals, (68 in all) was selected the Deus ex machina. He was selected because of his comparative insignificance. His neutrality of tint it was supposed by the managers, would harmonize the more pronounced colors, He was a man of exemplary character, who had served honorably, though not conspicuously, in the war and in Congress, and who, as Governor of Ohio, had given general satisfaction to his party. His talents were respectable, but no more. He had never been a leader in any of the relations, civil or military, in which he had acted. In that respect all his competitors were greatly his superiors. He had never been, in any sense of the word a reformer. Indeed, it is said—though I cannot vouch for the report—that he refused to accede to the resolutions of the New York Reform Club when they were presented to him for acceptance. Certainly, through all the dreadful exposures, which, as our address says, "brought shame to the face of honest Americans," he had raised no voice of rebuke. In his candidature for the Governorship of Ohio, he took position in favor of the evasive Resumption act, but his opinions, further than that, were either unknown or equivocal. He had simply kept step with his party, acquiescing in all its dilatory and ineffective measures, but never pushing one inch in advance.

Now, it would be simply ludicrous to discuss whether such a candidate comes up to the high requirements of the Conference address. Mr. Hayes never having in any way identified himself with the sentiment of reform, what assurance have we that he ever will? What guaranty is given us that he will not fall into the hands of the old political ring-masters, without whose concurrence he could not have been nominated, and will not be elected? Is he, in the words of our symbol, "publicly known to possess those qualities of mind and character which the stern task of genuine reform requires: for the American people cannot now afford to risk the future of the Republic in experiments on merely supposed virtue or rumored ability to be trusted on the strength of private recommendations.

In one word, at present no candidate should be held entitled to the support of patriotic citizens of whom the question may fairly be asked: "Is he really the man to carry through a thorough-going reform of the government? Has he won, again as our address demands and conditions, "not only the confidence of honest men, but the fear and hatred of thieves?" Is his name "already a watchword for reform, whose capacity and courage for the work are matters of record rather than of promise; who will restore the simplicity, independence and rectitude of the early administrations, and whose life will be a guaranty of his fidelity and fitness; a man at the mere sound of whose name even the most disheartened will take new courage, and all mankind will say, 'The Americans are indeed in earnest to restore the ancient purity of their government?'"

These words do not apply to Gov. Hayes; and it would be a disingenuousness hard to characterize, for those who wrote and adopted them, to select one of the very persons against whose possible candidacy they were leveled as their ultimate exponent.

But from the candidate let us turn to the platform or declaration of principles on which he is presented. Will that improve his position? Not at all. The platform, in its reformatory aspects, is even weaker than the nomination. One of the journals, The New York Evening Post, which most strongly sympathized in the objects of the Conference, said of it, on the day of its publication, that it was "half-hearted" and "timid." "The recent history of parties contains many pages of feeble resolutions," it adds, "but in a competition of weakness the declarations adopted yesterday may confidently challenge comparison with any others." It was a tissue of platitudes and commonplaces, such as we are usually treated to on such occasions, which literally say nothing that ought to be said, and say much that it is indifferent whether it is said or not. We look through it in vain for any watchword or key-note of reform. The administration of Grant, which has been and to this day is a source and instigation of many of the most monstrous abuses that we deplore, is commended to our approval and gratitude. Its recreant abandonment of the attempt at civil service reform passes unrebuked. Not a word is said in denunciation of the enormous conspiracies and frauds which had converted the Government from a protector into a despoiler. No allusion is made to the painful perversion of high trusts which have brought disgrace upon the nation. No stern, resolute, unsparing determination is expressed to rectify known wrongs, but only a feeble promise to punish them if, peradventure, they are discovered; no broad or statesmanlike scheme for the retrenchment of our oppressive expenditures is broached; no hearty condemnation of the bad practice which divides the spoils of office among the henchmen of Congressional leaders; no whisper of approval, even, of the law declaring a day for the resumption of specie payments, which some zealous Republicans would persuade us is a solemn National pledge, and the sum and test of orthodoxy, on the currency problem. The members of the Conference whose hearts were yet aglow with the beaming eloquence of Schurz, Adams, Seelye, Bullock and Welsh, must have read its jejune and costive phrases with the sensation of one that passes from the vapor bath into a cold plunge.

The letter of Gov. Hayes, since written in acceptance of the nomination, is, in some respects, an improvement of the meaningless symbol of his party. It recognizes the need of correcting the present mode of appointing to office, which has been one of the foulest spots of a thoroughly foul system. But its manner of correcting it—that is, by giving all the present incumbents of office an indefinite tenure—would simply perpetuate their hold of the trusts they have so many of them abused. Its principles, admitting them to be sound as principle, would, in their practical operation, be an act of indemnity for all the felons and rogues who now infest and pollute the public offices. It is also more emphatic, though still quite general and explicit on the subject of resuming specie payments. In his speech at Marion, Ohio, July 31, last year, Gov. Hayes declared that he was firmly opposed to contraction," and that "he left the work of placing our currency at par to the influence of time and the inherent energy and resources of the country"—Mr. Boutwell's much ridiculed scheme of "growing up to it;" but how we are to reach resumption by that process I fail to perceive. Resumption in that form means no resumption. As a whole this letter does not meet the exigency. It proposes to trim away a few branches of the upas tree, while it leaves the root untouched. Its omissions are as fatal as those of the platform. It does not even refer to, much less reprobate, that dangerous perversion of all right theory and practice of government which, under the significant name of Grantism, has become the dominant spirit of the party. Those prodigious and profligate expenditures that have maintained hordes of useless placemen and furnished food for the corrupt manipulators of political machinery, while they have almost paralyzed the industries of the people, are hardly mentioned. No matured plans of economy; no systematic scheme for the readjustment of our absurd and oppressive methods of taxation; no change in the loose, procrastinating, and incompetent treatment of the finances is so much as hinted at, and thus the letter leaves us in doubt whether the writer even comprehends the vital necessity of a thorough revolution of affairs.

The Democratic Convention met in St. Louis on the 27th of June. It differed from all previous conventions of the same party, according to a writer in the Tribune, in this remarkable particular: It was composed mainly of young men, or of those who had grown up since the time when that powerful unity, making its fatal mistake on the slavery issue, was broken into pieces, and a large fragment went wandering into the wilderness. The friends of Mr. Tilden, the acknowledged New York reformer, easily obtained the organization, and from beginning to end held the upper hand in all the proceedings. Only two ballots were taken—the first merely formal and complimentary—when Mr. Tilden was unanimously nominated. He was, however, not unopposed in spite of his ascendency, but the opposition to him came chiefly from what are regarded as the most questionable elements of his party—the representatives of Tammany Hall at the East, and the abettors of financial eccentricity at the West. Thus, by the manner of his selection, Mr. Tilden became not simply the candidate of a faction of his party, but the exponent of a principle.

Who, then, is Samuel J. Tilden?

In reply, good friends of the Conference, let me speak to you from my personal knowledge. I have been intimately acquainted with Mr. Tilden for nearly forty years, and though I have often differed with him politically, sometimes even lamenting his strong reliance on party agencies, I have never had the slightest occasion to suspect his absolute integrity of purpose and sincerity of conviction. In all the relations of private life he is purity itself. At the same time he has always been a public-spirited citizen, taking an active part in whatever concerned the welfare and progress of the community in which he lived. His devotion, indeed, to public affairs began while he was still a youth, and his early discussions of intricate questions of finance attracted the attention of maturer minds by their singular penetration and judgment. Professionally, he has taken rank with Van Buren, Brady, O'Conor, Graham, Evarts, Kirkland, and other foremost lawyers, and in a peculiar class of cases—heavy and complicated railroad litigations—he is admitted to be facile princeps. His counsel, when important and decisive action was involved, has been deemed invaluable. In still higher relations Mr. Tilden seems to me to combine, more than any man now before the public, hardly excepting Mr. Adams of Massachusetts, the two great kinds of quality, theoretic and practical, which form the true statesman; a profound understanding of the philosophic grounds of political opinion, and the sagacious tact and energy of the man of business.

This union of theoretic insight with practical capacity has been singularly shown in his administration of the affairs of this State. New York is the largest commonwealth of the Union, the largest in population, in agricultural products, in manufacturing enterprise, in commercial capital—in a word, in the diversity and importance of its business relations; and the Governorship there is not a mere clerical function, confined to the appointment of notaries and the signing of commissions, as in many of the newer Western States, but an onerous, intricate and responsible trust. The Governor is invested with the veto, which makes him a part of the legislative power, while his executive connection with the complicated business of the quarantine, the salt works, the State prisons and charities, and an immense system of canals, imposes upon him the most varied and difficult duties. Mr. Tilden, in his short tenure of the place, has evinced a masterly fitness for all its duties. He has defeated a multitude of ill-considered and improper bills, rectified many minor errors of administration, overthrown a fraudulent and gigantic conspiracy, and reduced the taxation from over $15,000,000 in 1875 to less than $8,000,000 in 1876 with an assurance that if the changes he has suggested are followed, the decrease will be two or three millions more in 1877! A part of this reduction is due to the extinction of the bounty debt, but the rest to Governor Tilden's direct efforts and influence.

I have said that Mr. Tilden is more of a partisan than suited my own temperament, but I ought in justice to add that he was never so much of a partisan as to render him insensible to the higher duties of the citizen. He separated from the bulk of his own party in this city, with other Free Soilers of this State, when we thought it advisable to protest against certain encroachments of slave power. He separated from the bulk of his own party in this city when he undertook to beat down the infamous Tweed gang, intrenched by the laws, and possessed by an almost overwhelming force. It was against the advice of many of the most eminent men of his own party that he assailed the Canal Ring, whose ramifications extended through nearly every county in the State, and whose wealth and influence were supposed to be invincible. And it was against a large and well combined faction of his own party that he lifted it at St. Louis out of the quagmires of doubt and error in which it was floundering and placed it on the high ground of its ancient traditions. Mr. Tilden is cautious and wary, and never acts until assured of foothold on truth and right; but then he is as tenacious in pursuit as a sleuth hound and absolutely inflexible.

The platform adopted at St. Louis reads to me from beginning to end, as an earnest and vigorous cry for a better condition of things. It is clear, outspoken, and positive, evading no real issues and treating those it touches with refreshing boldness and decision.

THEODORE BAGGE.....Alameda
MARION BIGGS.....Butte
JUAN B. CASTRO.....Monterey

FOR CONGRESSMAN:

J. K. LUTTRELL,

OF SONOMA COUNTY.

How to Vote.—Our outside pages are taken up with a long but very able, interesting and clearly written communication by Parke Godwin, for a long time associated with Wm. Cullen Bryant in the editorial management of the New York Evening Post and a leading member of the famous Fifth Avenue Conference, which was published in the New York Daily Tribune, of the 22d ult. It reviews the action of the two National Conventions; in it most cogent reasons are given why honest voters should support Tilden and Hendricks, and we commend it to independent voters who may desire to vote with the party most likely to carry out their views. The present Administration is arraigned on account of the gross and unprecendented corruptions existing in all its departments; it is plainly shown that these and other existing evils cannot be overcome if the Radical party is continued in power. Mr. Godwin also points out the remedy—how, in his opinion, voters should act to bring about a better and more satisfactory state of things. Read it through.

Republican Nominations.—The following are the Republican Presidential Electors for this State: Electors at large—General John F. Miller and M. M. Estee; Alternates at large—Paul Neuman and James McM. Shafter. D. A. McKenly was chosen Elector and O. F. Von Rhein Alternate from the First Congressional District. From the Second District, John B. Felton Elector and Geo. G. Blanchard Alternate; Third District, John H. Jewett Elector, Jerome Banks Alternate; Fourth District, J. Ostrader Elector, G. C. Reed Alternate.

Horace Davis, the well known flour merchant of San Francisco, has received the unanimous Republican nomination to represent that (first) District in Congress. H. F. Page is renominated for the Second District. Joseph McKenna, who represented Solano county in the last State Assembly, is the nominee for the Third District, and Ex-Governor Romualdo Pacheco is the nominee for the Southern, or Fourth District.

Great Heat.—Not only on this continent has the heat been excessive the present Summer, but also in Europe. A dispatch received at London Aug. 12th from Madrid says "the heat is fearfully excessive in that part of Spain—exceeding anything since 1800. The city is deserted. Forty field laborers died near Seville. The crops in Andalusia are scorching and failing." And from Paris Aug. 11th, "the heat is intense. Count St. Valer of the Senate was overcome yesterday, and had to be removed to Paris."

Musical Review.—We have received the July number of this monthly published by Sherman & Hyde, San Francisco. It contains twelve pages of sheet music, including the new and popular "First Kiss" Waltz, also an interesting letter referring to music at the Centennial Exposition, and correspondence from New Orleans and Germany, as well as local articles and miscellany.

"Daily Argus."—W. A. January, publisher of the Santa Clara Argus, commenced on the 14th inst., at San José, the publication of a daily Democratic paper, "with the full determination to make it a permanent institution." We wish Brother January a full measure of success.

Silver.—Bar silver was quoted in London on Tuesday at 53¼d. per ounce, scarce and very firm. This is the highest quotation given in some months. It has been as low as 45d. This shows a rise of about 16 cts. per ounce within a few weeks.

The Indian War.—The latest report is that Gen. Terry has had a fight with the Sioux, killing 700 redskins and sustaining a loss of 300 of his own men. No other particulars.

Adjourned.—Congress adjourned on the 15th instant.

CAMPAIGN NOTES.

ORIGINAL AND SELECTED.

WHAT WE NEED.

We need a reformation, sure,
A turning to the right;
A man whose heart is true and pure,
To lead us into light.
We need an honest President
With wisdom in his ways;
A different man from U. S. Grant
Or Rutherford B. Hayes.
Hurrah for Uncle Sam!

Wisconsin politicians put Tilden's majority in that State at 10,000.

The Liberal State Central Committee of Michigan recently met at Jackson and unanimously endorsed the St. Louis nominees.

We have the promise of the Boston Post that the Democracy will carry Massachusetts for the St. Louis ticket.

The Northampton (Mass.) Journal, heretofore a strong Republican organ, comes out squarely and enthusiastically for the Democratic National ticket.

The Republicans have given up all hopes of carrying New York. The Albany Journal, a leading Republican organ, is trying to figure up the election of Hayes, without New York, but the figures will not come out right.

The Radicals were mad because Tilden and Hendricks did not write their letters of acceptance, and now they are madder because they have written them.

Beecher is for Hayes. So is Babcock, Belknap, Blaine, Joyce, McKee, Avery and a host of other illustrious characters, together with Gen. Grant.

Under Lincoln the number of Federal office-holders was 46,040; under Grant it is 94,119. Our Uncle Samuel will reduce this army very speedily.

Governor Tilden is unquestionably the nominee of all that is best in the Democratic party, is the opinion of the New York Graphic. So, unless the Rads. have gobbled up all the purity, as they claim, Uncle Sam. must be a pretty good man. If he is "the best in the party" he's certainly good enough.

The men who have known Mr. Tilden longest and most intimately, and understood best the constitution of his mind and the nature of his ideas, are those who have most faith in his statesmanship. And they are not confined to his own party. Mr. Tilden's administration promises to be one of the purest, wisest and most brilliant in the annals of the country.

A New York paper tells us that at least two-thirds of the Republicans who voted for Greeley in 1872, will support Uncle Sam Tilden. We have no doubt that such will be the case in every State in the Union. They supported Greeley because they were disgusted with Grantism.

The New York Times announces that "the Greenback Democrats of that State will support the St. Louis nominees." Isn't that strange!

The Santa Clara Argus estimates that Tilden will lead Hayes in California 15,000 votes, and says: "This is based upon our high opinion of the good sense and patriotism of the people and the result of the last State election. Then there were 123,000 votes polled, of which 91,500 were recorded against Grantism as represented by Timothy Guy Phelps."

Hayes' letter does not hurt the feelings of a single member of the whisky ring. According to the St. Louis Republican, every member of that ring, in jail or out, is an active supporter of Hayes this day.

The Republican managers are now hiring men in the South to hoist Confederate banners with the names of Tilden and Hendricks inscribed thereon. So says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Edward Ransom, of North Carolina, Independent Radical candidate for Congress in the First District of that State two years ago, and President of the recent State Constitutional Convention, announces his intention to support the Democratic nominations, both State and National. He will take the stump immediately. Mr. Ransom was a Grant Elector in 1872.

Hayes must be good man, exclaims the New York Day-Book. Ben Butler approves of him, Schuyler Colfax speaks highly of his piety, and "Boss" Shepherd is moved to enthusiasm by his nomination.

There was an election in Kentucky August 8th. Everywhere there were large Democratic gains. Henry Watterson, editor of the Courier-Journal, was Democratic candidate for Congress in the Louisville District. He received over 14,000 votes, and only about 500 were cast against him. There are over 2,000 colored voters in Louisville.

The Cleveland, Ohio Plain Dealer, defies the whole gang of Radical writers in the country to point to a single instance where, as a public officer, Gov. Tilden has not manfully and nobly upheld the side of the people against the demands of "ringsters" and "jobbers."

The Democratic majority in the House of Representatives have done the country a great service in exposing the corruption of Grantism, which, but for their election, would have been kept hidden by Republican Representatives. Let them now continue the work by impeaching Secor Robeson.

The gravest charge the Republicans have thus far been able to bring against Tilden's letter of acceptance is that he declared the interest on the public debt payable in gold, when it seems the law says it shall be paid in "coin." A terrible thing indeed.

Governor Tilden, in a speech in New York, said: "Encourage the growth of the gold and silver producing districts as the surest and safest way out of your financial difficulties." Californians should remember that when they go to the polls.

Hon. G. W. Julian, of Indiana, is out for Tilden and Hendricks.

The Brooklyn Eagle says: "The Tilden canvass grows as it goes. It inspires confidence the more the leader is studied. It increases confidence the more the field is observed."

The Republican party is already whipped in Indiana. Orth, their candidate for Governor, has been forced to resign, and Harrison, his successor, will find his opponent ahead of him at the next election.

The best-looking man on either Presidential ticket is Hendricks. Tilden looks like a renegade Quaker, Hayes like the landlord of a fifth-rate hotel, and Wheeler like a life prisoner in a penitentiary.

That Gen. Franz Sigel has declared for Tilden and Hendricks is certainly true.

The Hon. R. M. Preston, of San Luis Obispo, says the Democrats in the southern portion of the State are united, unanimous and enthusiastic for Tilden and Hendricks. San Luis county will give a Democratic majority of from one hundred to two hundred.

There are many signs already in this campaign by which the Democracy ought to feel encouraged, and not the least significant are the rousing demonstrations for Tilden and Hendricks that are taking place in cities not surrounded by sentiment hitherto particularly friendly to the spread of Democratic principles. In whatever direction we turn, the Democrats are doing their duty.

The Merced Club of Merced City now numbers two hundred and fifty active members. Its meetings are large and enthusiastic. The Democracy in that section of the State intend to compete with Fresno county for the "Banner."

Mr. Hayes cannot accomplish the popular purpose. Mr. Tilden can. The former will be hedged in on all sides by those to whom reform means annihilation, and he will be as powerless as a puppet in their hands; whereas Mr. Tilden will have no hindrance that he cannot easily overcome.

Stephen T. Hayt, of Corning, New York, feels that "duty compels him to support Hayes and Wheeler." And why not? He was a Radical canal commissioner for three years, and can not be expected to have any special admiration for Uncle Sam Tilden, who broke up the "canal ring."

Mr. Munn, of Chicago, asked Mr. Blaine to use his influence with General Grant for some purpose or other. Mr. Blaine, according to the story, replied in these terms:—"I have no influence with the present administration. No man has who is not a thief by instinct." This is the most serious condemnation ever passed upon Grant. It is written by the most popular man in the Radical party.

Nearly all of the Liberal papers in Wisconsin advocate the election of the St. Louis ticket.

The testimony of Bluford Wilson, ex-Solicitor of the Treasury, puts the finishing touch to the portrait of Grant as it has been drawn and colored for some months past, exclaims the Brooklyn Aagus, an Independent Radical Journal. Mr. Wilson is a man to be believed, and the efforts now making to defame and injure him only react upon his maligners.

Zach. Chandler, Chairman of Hayes National Committee, is levying assessments on the officeholders for the benefis of Hayes, with the approbation of Grant, Secor Robeson, Boss Shepherd, Measurer Babcock, and the rest of the White House Ring. If Hayes is elected, do Schurz, Fenton and that set suppose he will dare to go back on the men who ran the machine for his benefit?

Even James Redpath, who was sent down into Mississippi to furnish fresh paint for the bloody shirt, makes this admission: "There is no desire among any class to secede again, or make war against the Union. Therefore there are no rebels. Let us drop the word."

Governor Tilden, by a wise administration of the affairs of the Empire State, has succeeded in less than three years in reducing taxation nearly one-half. That we call honesty and wise statesmanship. Now, remarks the Philadelphia Chronicle, let some of our Republican contemporaries tell us where Gov. Hayes' hand, voice or influence was ever raised or exerted in behalf of Governmental economy.

The Montgomery, (Ala.), Advertiser says: "We would very naturally thank Mr. Hayes for his declaration of good intentions toward the South if elected, but we are unfortunately reminded that we had similar declarations from Mr. Lincoln in 1860, and Mr. Grant in 1868."

Shocking Accident.—On Monday last a little son of D. P. Diggs, aged five years was thrown from a load of wheat on which he was riding behind his father, and a hind wheel passed over his body and grazed his head so hard as to cause a serious scalp wound. At first it was thought the little fellow's injuries were fatal, but yesterday hopes were entertained of his recovery.

Large Auction Sale.—A. G. Read, licensed Auctioneer, will sell for E. B. Miles, on the Gordon Grant, five miles northwest of Woodland, on Saturday, August 26th, 14 horses, 6 mules, a large lot of harness, wagons, farm implements, hay, household furniture, etc. See advertisement for particulars.

Legal Tender Notes sold the other day in San Francisco at 95 cts. This was doubtless on account of the redemption of $50,000 worth of them at the Sub-Treasury in silver coin.

Lost.—Read the advertisement of a lost filley and $20 reward offered.

Awful Accident.—On the 10th instant, near Arbuckle Station, Colusa county, as we learn from the Sun, Dominick Deveney, a "table man" on J. H. Bailey's threshing machine, was struck by a derrick fork and thrown into the separator feet foremost. The cylinder tore off both legs—one just above the ankle, the other at the knee. Both legs were amputated above the knee, but he died about three o'clock on Friday morning from the accident.

Prompt.—Henry Watterson, elected from the Louisville, Ky., district to Congress on the 7th instant, took the oath of office on Monday last, the day before the late session closed.

AITKEN & LUCE

Make the following proposition to those who wish Monuments or Headstones, and who come to the City for the express purpose of selecting.

We will pay the R.R. fare both ways when the distance and amount of purchase compare with the following table:

$50 00	Contract—	30 miles or less.
$75.00	"	40	" "
$100.00	"	50	" "
$250.00	"	75	" "
$500.00	"	150	" "
$1,000.00	"	300	" "

Cut this out and bring it with you, and after you have made your purchase, present it, and we will give you credit for your R. R. fare both ways.

We wish it distinctly understood that we work any kind of marble desired, and as low as the lowest.

Italian, Vermont and California Marble, of our own importation and production, at wholesale and retail.

Town and County Matters

Our Campaign Offer.

We propose to those who are not taking the DEMOCRAT and desire to do so, to receive subscriptions for one year at the regular price, payable when Tilden and Hendricks are elected President and Vice-President of the United States. We have this much faith in the success of our nominees and the pure principles they represent. The DEMOCRAT will be up with the times in all that pertains to the campaign just opening, and will at the same time keep its readers posted upon the local and general news of the day. All who want the paper are invited to send in their names on this proposition.

Board of Supervisors.

The regular monthly meeting of the Supervisors commenced August 14th, 1876—full Board present.

Road No. 115—Hearing of report of Viewers continued till September 11th, at 1 P.M.

The family of W. W. DeWitt are allowed $15 per month for their support.

Estate of Wm. M. Jackson allowed $142.50 for granting Clanton road.

English Cut.—Bids are ordered for filling the English Cut, on the Sacramento river, bids to be opened Sept. 11th, 1876, at 1 P. M.; the embankment to be six inches higher than the levee on Bentley's lower place and twelve feet wide on the top, with a slope of three feet to one perpendicular on the outside, and two to one on the inside. The contract for building the bridge across English Cut is rescinded.

Road No. 115½—Report of Viewers is approved and $100 damages awarded to M. Lanken.

The Clerk is authorized to advertise for proposals for furnishing wood for the Court House and Hospital as follows: Five cords 2-foot wood and forty cords 16-inch wood for Court House, and twenty cords 16-inch wood for Hospital.

CLUB MEETING.—Pursuant to notice, a number of Democrats assembled at the Town Hall on Saturday evening last for the purpose of organizing a Democratic Tilden and Hendricks Reform Club. After temporary officers had been chosen, Messrs. Watkins, Ball, Sill and others made remarks setting forth their views. On motion a committee of five was appointed to prepare and submit to the next meeting a plan of organization. A committee of three was, on motion, appointed to procure a hall for the use of the Club during the campaign. The following resolution, presented by Hon. J. C. Ball, was adopted and signed by every person present:

Resolved, That we the undersigned agree to form ourselves into an organization for the promotion of Democracy and the principles of Governmental Reform.

Adjourned to meet Saturday evening, Aug. 19th.

CLEARANCE SALE.—A great clearing out sale will take place at the White House during the next thirty days, to make room for an immense Fall stock soon to come in. This is the largest and handsomest house in Woodland, and Mr. Alexander is determined to maintain its reputation as the leading one in his line.

OPENING OF COLLEGE AND SCHOOLS. On Monday next Hesperian College will again unfold her doors for the education of the children and youth. On the same day the public school will also begin. Both are well provided with teachers of experience and ability and will no doubt be very liberally patronized.

THEATRICAL.—Lovers of the drama will be pleased to learn that Piper's Opera House Company are advertised to appear at Washington Hall on the evenings of August 21st and 22d. It is one of the best travelling companies in the country, and was well patronized when here a short time ago.

CLUB MEETING.—Another meeting of the Tilden and Hendricks Reform Club will be held on Saturday evening, when a permanent organization will be effected and voters be requested to enroll their names.

FOR SCHOOL BOOKS go to G. W. Green, who has just laid in a full supply of all kinds needed at College or public school.

Our Winters Letter.

WINTERS, Aug. 8th, 1876.

The thick and heavy dust that hangs over the town of Winters reminds one of Pittsburg, where the dense smoke from its foundries mark the spot for miles around. From the small header-wagon to the twelve-ton prairie schooner with a half dozen small wagons buckled on and drawn by from six to twelve good horses, are the main cause of this, and may be noted at all hours of the day entering this enormous grain depot, where hundreds of tons of grain are daily added to the great massive heaps of golden wheat which loom up like the dome of some grand structure.

There is now, and has been during the last thirty days, about ten tons of grain shipped daily, while the amount that goes into storage will foot up to probably four hundred tons per day. It may not be inopportune to state that this is a struggle with reasonable complaint upon one side and monopoly and oppression upon the other. Let us hope for a compromise at an early date. It is a known fact that nine-tenths of the staunch farmers of California can easily run to another year without disposing of more than one-fourth of their present stock of grain on hand. We remember seven years ago. Still fresher in our memory is two years ago; and further yet, we remember the past twenty years. California produces the finest grain in the world, and the world knows it. So we know well enough that our well filled granaries will not go long unnoticed, and hence there is the most unconcerned feeling in relation to the present low prices.

I understand that efforts will be made some time during the coming fall to organize an Agricultural Society, which will be hailed as the Yolo and Solano Agricultural Society, and trust that Winters will be the "location of its works."

Scarcely a day passes in which a new name is not added to the swindled list at the racing which took place on the 23d ult. A bigger swindle and a more disgraceful result was never known in all the records of horse jockeying than was made manifest in the race between "Sherman" and "Bradley." In fact I doubt very much if there was more than one square race out of the four, while hundreds of people were humbuged by a lot of tricksters and horse jockeys. It is claimed that Mr. Winters was not knowing to the facts before the race came off and was exceedingly sorry. Mr. Winters is a very clever gentleman, but who knows what Mr. Winters knew? Suffice it to say that several hundred dollars were lost on Mr. Winters' horse in this immediate neighborhood, but we expect to hear of better time being made in the same horse's next race, over the mountains, which takes place early in September.

The telegraph poles are being rapidly set to Langville, the forerunner of the new railroad.

The Presbyterian Church is the first erected by that denomination in the county.

Several families from this vicinity have sought the mountains to pass away the remaining hot weather.

Tilden will carry this precinct by one hundred majority.

The wife of one of our sable "gemmens" has decamped with one of the opposite sex who is not quite so dusky.

Six music teachers find steady employment hereabout.

Twenty-one men are employed in our grain yards.

Considerable ill-feeling has engendered out of our obstructed by-ways—roads we have none. ORLAND.

THE TRUE PRINCIPLE.—The principle upon which is based the greatest success of the best business houses of the country is that of doing a large business at a small profit, rather than a small business at a large profit, thereby insuring to the consumer a lower rate in prices than can be obtained on the narrower plan. Read & Forrester having purchased a large stock of goods within the last ten days at the lowest cash figures, are now prepared to do business on this plan. The public are respectfully invited to call and examine their goods and prices, at Lewald's old stand opposite the Postoffice. 40

THE LEADING HOUSE.—You can buy at Gilman Brothers, 137 J street between 5th and 6th, Sacramento, Merrimac and Sprague calicoes at six cents per yard, 4-4 unbleached sheeting at eight cents, white sheeting at 10 and 12½ cents, and towling at 10 and 12½ cents per yard. They take the lead. 40

CAMP MEETING.—The Methodist Church South will hold their annual camp meeting at the ranch of Mr. Barney Green, on Gourd Neck Slough, one mile east of Kirksville, Sutter county, commencing August 24th. All are most cordially invited. It will continue several days.

RANCH FOR SALE.—Mr. Jas. Gose offers his ranch of 160 acres with house, barn, hogs, cattle, etc., situated 9 miles west of Woodland and 1½ miles east of Cottonwood, for $4,500. Read his advertisement.

MODERATED.—The north wind which blew here only on Tuesday last week, we learn from the Tehama Tocsin of the 10th had "blown at a terrific rate" there up to Thursday. It probably moderates as it travels.

THE RUSH.—There will no doubt be a great rush at Alexander's White House during the clearance sale of the next thirty days. The goods must be sold to make room for a heavy Fall stock.

The Soul's Hope.

Through the ideal and the real
The current of my soul runs thus:
I know not why, but sure I feel
This life is not the last of us.

I know not why, but somehow this
Comes often in my dreams to me,
That all we know of worldly bliss
Is but a taste of what shall be.

The earth is naught. The stars above
That fret the proud empyrean blue;
Are but reflections of His love
Who holds the universe in view.

And what am I? An earthling o'er
Whose last remains shall press the sod:
An infant lying in the door.
Crying through the night for God.

—Hood Alston in the Occident.

Card of Thanks.

WOODLAND, Cal., Aug. 15, 1876.

To my Friends and Neighbors:—I received the following note through the Postoffice yesterday:

WOODLAND, Cal., Aug. 14, 1876.

JAMES WHITE, ESQ.—DEAR SIR.—Some of your neighbors and friends, feeling a deep sympathy for your many misfortunes, have expressed a wish to assist you to bear the loss met with by the late fire. They have therefore deposited to your credit at the Bank of Woodland, $223.50 which they beg you will accept in the same kindly feeling in which it is offered.

Yours truly, C. T. BIDWELL.

You cannot imagine my feelings at this unexpected generosity. I do not know the names of the donors, therefore I adopt this plan of tendering you the sincere thanks of a grateful heart.

Yours, JAMES WHITE.

NEW PATENTS.—Through Dewey & Co., Patent Agents, San Francisco, we receive the following advance list of U. S. Patents, granted to Pacific Coast inventors, viz: Robert H. Austin, Plainsburg, Cal., sheep shears; Wm. T. Easterday, Watsonville, seed planters; Jos. Perkins, S. F., hydraulic elevators; Geo. W. Swan, S. F., box nailing machine; E. D. Tyne, S. F., thermoscopic lubricator; Henry J. Huttner, New Almaden, Cal., feeding and discharging hoppers; James Moore, Pescadero, inside dividers for harvesters; Charles F. Secor, S. F., amalgamating process; Wm. A. Winder and Melville M. Shearer, San Diego, composition beverages; Philip Hinkle, S. F., (re-issue) hydraulic jacks; Blake, Robbins & Co., S. F., (trade-mark) paper bags.

DISHES AND GLASSWARE, of the best quality, cheap, at J. H Eaton & Son's. 27

THE MEAT SUBSCRIPTION.—C. H. Davis & Co., deeming that the letter of Mr. Wright, published last week, conveys the impression that they have not been settled with satisfactorily by the Fourth of July Finance Committee, desire us to state that they are entirely satisfied and have no fault to find.

PREPARING.—A rich musical treat is being prepared for the public by the blind boys, Wm. Smith and Luke Andrews, and their friends who have volunteered to aid them. The definite time will soon be announced.

IT is a noteworthy fact that all the trouble in the Southern States between the races comes from those States where the carpet-baggers are in power.

J. H. EATON & SON pay the highest price for eggs and poultry. 26

We Can't Talk

Without showing the condition of our teeth. Every laugh exposes them. In order not to be ashamed of them, let us use that standard dentifrice, SOZODONT, which is sure to keep them white and spotless. No tartar can encrust them, no canker affect the enamel, no species of decay infest the dental bone, if SOZODONT is regularly used. It is a botanical preparation, and its beneficial effects on the teeth and gums are marvelous, as it removes all discolorations and renders the gums hard and rosy.

The "Housekeeper" of our Health.

The liver is the great depurating or blood-cleansing organ of the system. Set this great housekeeper of our health at work, and the foul corruptions which gender in the blood and rot-out, as it were, the machinery of life, are gradually expelled from the system. For this purpose Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, with small daily doses of his Purgative Pellets are pre-eminently the articles needed.

At this season of the year cramps and pains in the stomach and bowels, dysentery, diarrhœa, etc., are quite common, and should be checked at once. "Johnson's Anodyne Liniment" is the best article that can be used in all such cases; it should be kept in every family. Used internally.

GREAT harm and discomfort is caused by the use of purgatives which gripe and rack the system. "Parson's Purgative Pills" are free from all impure matter, and are mild and health-giving in their operation.

BY THE Simple and Cheap Expedient of using GLENN'S SULPHUR SOAP to wash with, the skin is protected against all diseases communicated by contact, and blotches, pimples, eruptions and roughness entirely obviated.

BORN.

In Woodland, August 8th, 1876, to the wife of John W. Price, a Son.

MARRIED.

At the residence of the bride's sister, Mrs. Hartley, in Butte county, August 12th, 1876, by Rev. J. W. Bryant, Mr. Daniel Matthewson to Miss Belle Kinghelm, of Yolo county.

The happy bride is well known in Woodland and vicinity, having grown up in this county. We are glad to learn she has made a good choice in her husband, and hope all life's journey will be as smooth as it is ever made for earthly mortals—even a foretaste of that "bright beyond" for which all are hoping and some are striving. This is our heart's most earnest wish.

At the residence of the bride's parents, in Putah Township, Yolo Co., Cal., August 13th, 1876, by Col. P. H. Sibley, J. P., James T. Shubert and Naoma Ralls, both of Yolo County, Cal.

In the Christian Church, Woodland, Aug. 14th, by Elder J. N. Pendegast, Judge C. L. N. Vaughn, of Arbuckle, Colusa County, and Miss Sue H. Adams, of Carson City, Nevada.

☞ Colusa papers please copy.

Judge Vaughn is well known to all the early settlers of Central California, besides having an extensive acquaintance throughout the Coast, and is universally loved and respected. The comely and lovely bride, Miss Adams, is a lineal descendent of the Adams family of Revolutionary fame, and consequently is a blood relative of Hon. Chas. Francis Adams, of Massachusetts. We had the honor of being present, with a few other friends of the Judge, at the wedding, and we fervently trust this union will be the means of much real happiness to both bride and groom. The usual favors accompanied this notice in very liberal quantity.

TO DEALERS IN CIGARS.—Being connected with one of the largest cigar manufacturers in San Francisco, I can furnish cigars to the trade at figures greatly below the market prices.

A Harvest of Health.

Those who use Hostetter's Stomach Bitters as a means of invigoration and protection against disease, invariably reap an ample harvest of health. Digestion, excretion and secretion are rendered regular and vigorous by this ruling tonic and alterative, and the essentials of health being secured, that blessing naturally follows. Nervous diseases, intermittent and remittent fevers, rheumatism, billiousness, and kidney or bladder troubles are speedily relieved by the Bitters, which are as potent in preventing these maladies as in remedying them. And it may almost be said that their power of preventing diseases is as strong a recommendation in their favor as their power of curing them, especially in localities where febrile complaints of an intermittent type prevail, and where the ordinary resources of the pharmacopœia, such as quinine, arsenic, bismuth, etc., afford no adequate safeguard.

The Bitters are also highly desirable as a substitute for the ordinary nervines and sedatives. The hydrate of chloral and the bromide of potassium are both highly pernicious drugs, the first clouding the brain, and, it is said, weakening the tonicity of the venous system; and the latter ruining the digestion and infecting the blood. Hostetter's Bitters achieves the remedial purpose of both these medicines, which is to soothe the brain and nerves, without causing any hurtful after-effects, but on the contrary, toning as well as soothing the irritated sensorium. The nervous invalid who uses this superlative vegetable nervine, finds in it a source of unspeakable relief, and of unwonted vitality as well.

CENTENNIAL EXHIBITION,

PHILADELPHIA, PA.

THIS GREAT INTERNATIONAL EXHIBITION, DESIGNED TO COMMEMORATE THE ONE HUNDREDTH ANNIVERSARY OF AMERICAN INDEPENDENCE, OPENED MAY 10th, AND WILL CLOSE NOVEMBER 10th, 1876. All the Nations of the world and all the States and Territories of the Union are participating in this wonderful demonstration; bringing together the most comprehensive collection of art treasures, mechanical inventions, scientific discoveries, manufacturing achievements, mineral specimens, and agricultural products ever exhibited. The grounds devoted to the Exhibition are situated on the line of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and embrace four hundred and fifty acres of Fairmount Park, all highly improved and ornamented, on which are erected the largest buildings ever constructed,—five of these covering an area of fifty acres and costing $5,000,000. The total number of buildings erected for the purposes of the Exhibition is near two hundred. During the thirty days immediately following the opening of the Exhibition a million and a quarter of people visited it.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD,

THE GREAT TRUNK LINE

—AND—

Fast Mail Route of the United States,

Is the most direct, convenient and economical way of reaching Philadelphia and this great Exhibition from all sections of the country. Its trains to and from Philadelphia will pass through a GRAND CENTENNIAL DEPOT, which the Company have erected at the Main Entrance to the Exhibition Grounds for the accommodation of passengers who wish to stop at or start from the numerous large hotels contiguous to this station and the Exhibition, a convenience of the greatest value to visitors, and afforded exclusively by the Pennsylvania Railroad, which is THE ONLY LINE RUNNING DIRECT TO THE CENTENNIAL BUILDINGS. Excursion trains will also stop at the Encampment of the Patrons of Husbandry, at Elm Station on this road.

THE PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD IS THE GRANDEST RAILWAY ORGANIZATION IN THE WORLD. IT CONTROLS SEVEN THOUSAND MILES OF ROADWAY, FORMING CONTINUOUS LINES TO WASHINGTON, OVER WHICH LUXURIOUS DAY AND NIGHT CARS ARE RUN FROM CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS, LOUISVILLE, CINCINNATI, INDIANAPOLIS, COLUMBUS, TOLEDO, CLEVELAND, AND ERIE, WITHOUT CHANGE.

Its main line is laid with double and third tracks of heavy steel rails upon a deep bed of broken stone ballast, and its bridges are all of iron or stone. Its passenger trains are equipped with every known improvement for comfort and safety, and are run at faster speed for greater distances than the trains of any line on the continent. The Company has largely increased its equipment for Centennial travel, and will be prepared to build in its own shops locomotives and passenger cars at short notice sufficient to fully accommodate any extra demand. The unequaled resources at the command of the Company guarantee the most perfect accommodations for its patrons during the Centennial Exhibition.

THE MAGNIFICENT SCENERY for which the Pennsylvania Railroad is so justly celebrated presents to the traveler over its perfect roadway an ever-changing panorama of river, mountain and landscape views unequaled in America.

THE EATING-STATIONS on this line are unsurpassed. Meals will be furnished at suitable hours and ample time allowed for enjoying them.

EXCURSION TICKETS, at reduced rates, will be sold at all principal Railroad Ticket Offices in the West, North-west and South-west.

BE SURE THAT YOUR TICKETS READ VIA THE GREAT PENNSYLVANIA ROUTE TO THE CENTENNIAL.

[Concluded from First Page.]

mands a change in the bad practice which has rendered appointments to office the reward for service to Congressmen and Senators; it demands frugality, simplicity, capacity, and honesty in all public offices; and last, though not least, it demands, in the place of that imbecile, dilatory, inefficient, and deceptive policy which has hitherto marked the treatment of the currency problem, instantaneous, active, systematic and vigorous effort for the restoration of sound financial condition.

Let us consider the doings of the late Conventions in respect to this most important point. Here is, first, the resolve passed at Cincinnati:

In the first act of Congress signed by President Grant the National Government assumed to remove any doubts of its purpose to discharge all just obligations to public creditors, and solemnly pledged its faith, to make provision at the earliest practicable period for the redemption of United States notes in coin. Commercial prosperity, public morals, and national credit demand that this promise be fulfilled by a continuous and steady progress to specie payments.

When this resolution was reported by General Hawley, Chairman of the Committee on resolutions, Mr. Davis, of Texas, of the minority of the Committee, moved a substitute, declaring distinctly that there should be no further postponement of the resumption of specie payments beyond the date already fixed by the law of January 14th, 1875. He remarked that the resolution of the majority was indefinite, and that the effect of it would be to "remit the question involved to the domain of vague promise." General Hawley opposed the substitute, on the ground, first, that "in dealing with principles for the guidance of a party for a year or for four years it is best to confine yourself to a declaration of them, and not to tie yourself to mere details;" and secondly, that it was doubtful "whether the Resumption Act could be carried out in two years from next January." He argued that the requisite legislation could not be perfected in time to compass the result, and that it would only embarrass the canvass by the recognition of a law which might prove altogether impracticable. He would not himself vote for it in Congress, and he could not call upon the people to support what he could not vote for. General Hawley's view prevailed; the substitute was rejected, and the fixed day, which certain orators hold "a sacred pledge," was quietly abandoned for "a continuous and steady progress to specie resumption." What was meant by this phrase we may, perhaps, gather from the reference in the outset of the resolution to the Act of 1869—when "the progress" was begun, and which in seven long years "steady and continuous" movement has arrived at this wonderful conclusion, that we ought to go on in the same way—that is, in doing nothing.

What said the Democrats on the same subject?

Reform is necessary to establish a sound currency, restore the public credit, and maintain the national honor.

We denounce the failure of all these eleven years of peace to make good the promise of the legal-tender notes, which are a changing standard of value in the hands of the people, and the non-payment of which is a disregard of the plighted faith of the nation.

We denounce the improvidence, which, in eleven years of peace, has taken from the people in Federal taxes, thirteen times the whole amount of the legal-tender notes, and squandered four times their sum in useless expense, without accumulating any reserve for their redemption.

We denounce the financial imbecility and immorality of that party which, during eleven years of peace, has made no advance toward resumption, no preparation for resumption, but instead has obstructed resumption, by wasting our resources and exhausting all our surplus income; and, while annually professing to intend a speedy return to specie payments, has annually enacted fresh hindrances thereto. As such a hindrance we denounce the Resumption clause of the act of 1875 and demand its repeal.

We demand a judicious system of preparation by public economies, by official retrenchments, and by wise finance, which shall enable the nation soon to assure the whole world of its perfect ability and its perfect readiness to meet any of its promises at the call of the creditor entitled to payment.

We believe such a system, well devised, and above all entrusted to competent hands for execution, creating at no time an artificial scarcity of currency, and at no time alarming the public mind into a withdrawal of that vaster machinery of credit by which 95 per cent. of all business transactions are performed—a system open, public, and inspiring general confidence, would from the day of its adoption bring healing on its wings to all our harrassed industries, set in motion the wheels of commerce, manufactures, mechanic arts, restore employment to labor, and renew in all its natural sources the prosperity of the people.

It is proper to recall before we scrutinize the scope and meaning of these phrases that were stoutly opposed, both in committee and convention, by the inflationist leaders. Whatever their real purport, these men saw in them a flat contradiction of their own schemes. General Ewing and Mr. Voorhees, who spoke for the minority denounced them as a complete surrender to the hard money theorists. The former, in order to obtain a partial recognition of his ways of thinking, moved a substitute proposing a repeal of the whole Resumption Act "forthwith." Mr. Dorsheimer of the majority of the Committee refused to accede to it, saying: "I propose right here to make a straight issue between hard and soft money. By that we stand or fall." He was sustained by the Convention, and the substitute rejected by a vote of more than two and a half to one—519 to 219. The result was regarded as a decisive victory for the advocates of the sounder doctrine.

I cannot doubt that such is the right interpretation of the result; for I discover that these resolves are mainly a summary of the teachings of Gov. Tilden, to be found in his luminous messages to the New York Legislature, wherein he speaks in no ambiguous language. Gov. Tilden was originally opposed to the issue of irredeemable notes, and counseled Secretary Chase against the expedient, which he averred would greatly enhance the cost of the war, and lead to the embarrassments and disasters we have since experienced. When they were once issued, he insisted that they should be held redeemable at all times in the interest-bearing obligations of of the Government, which Mr. Spaulding, the author of the Legal Tender Act, tells us was the original intention of its framers. At the close of the war, one of his grounds of quarrel with the party in power was, that it did not at once engage actively and efficiently in preparations for their redemption. The process, as he showed at great length in his messages, was easy and practicable, providing it should be persistently pursued. Demonstrating with the clearest perception of the fundamental principles of currency, that even after the reaction of 1872 began a moderate issue of greenbacks would do no good, or have no effect toward arresting it, while an indefinite issue would provoke additional disaster, he advised, in the first place, that the revenues of the Government be increased so as to produce a surplus without resorting to new taxation; secondly, that a sufficiency of gold should be amassed in the treasury, from our outfloating streams or from markets abroad, to form an adequate reserve to meet the demand for exportation, and to assure the people that the supply would not be exhausted; and, thirdly, that the legal tenders be converted into interest-paying investments on terms the holders would accept, and in such ways as would keep the aggregate amount of the currency self-adjusting during all the process without creating an artificial scarcity, and without disturbing the natural operations of business.

Now, in the light of this brief exposition, it will be seen that there is a wide difference in the treatment of the currency question by the two platforms. The one simply evades it by a barren generality; the other meets it with wise practical suggestions. The one simply says that we are to get at the end, the resumption of specie payments, some time or other, in some way or other not disclosed; the other, that we must set about it, not by promises, but by actual preparations. The Democratic symbol is much the most explicit, full, peremptory. It states the end to be aimed at, viz: "to establish a sound currency, to restore public credit, and maintain the national honor." It denounces the legal-tender notes for the first time in any political credo, as broken and dishonored promises. It points to the means for their redemption—"economy, retrenchment and wise finance"—and it arraigns the party in power for their dilatory, unmeaning and futile pretexts, which has fed us with words without deeds, and delayed and hindered recovery to the detriment of every business interest.

I am aware that many men of excellent judgment and purpose hold that the clause of the law of January 1875, designating a precise day for resumption, is the shibboleth of the whole cause. Our eloquent colleague Mr. Schurz, though he denounced the general law in the Senate as a mere decree which would accomplish nothing, has come to regard this clause as a pledge of our national faith and honor. But I cannot so look at it. That clause, like the law itself, was passed in the ordinary course of legislation, and only engages us to resume at a given time, provided such resumption is found to be possible and practicable. If, however, it should turn out that it is not possible or practicable, it ought to be repealed. The whole thing, as General Hawley said, and as the Republican Convention enacted, is a question of detail, and not of principle. Resumption itself is a question of principle and a question of honor; but the exact time for resumption, the specific measures, the discreet preparations, are, as Gov. Tilden argues, business questions to be dealt with, in view of the state of trade and of credit operations in our own country, the course of foreign commerce, and the condition of the exchanges with other nations, the amounts of the precious metals, and the stocks from which a supply would flow without undue disturbance of the markets of other countries. All these are considerations for practical administrative statesmanship, and are not materials for party cries and the hullaballoo of a heated electorial canvass.

The designation of a particular day for the performance of an act, in an adverse or torpid state of opinion, may have a beneficial effect in stimulating the necessary preparations; but it may have also a contrary effect by lulling opinion into a false security by means of a promise when the circumstances demand deeds. Mr. Edmund Dwight, of this city, one of our ablest and most experienced financiers, a Republican and a contractionist, in a most elaborate and carefully considered discussion of the subject (see Evening Post of March, 1876), reviewing the experiences of other nations, as well as our own, showed that while the law itself was unconstitutional, this particular clause was equivocal and delusive. It could not, under any circumstances, be executed, and would only involve us in new failures and confusions, putting off indifinitely the period of resumption. Other high authorities share Mr. Dwight's opinions, and, if they should turn out to be well founded, we are put in the position of those wreckers who wave their flags to the storm-tossed mariners ostensibly to show a port of safety, but in reality to lure them to a more certain destruction.

But admitting Tilden to be all right, there is Hendricks, nominated with him for the Vice-Presidency! Now the Vice-President has no legislative function whatever, save in one not very probable contingency—the death of the President. Mr. Tilden is of a long-lived family, has never had any organic disease, is in good health, of temperate and active habits, and likely to live out the ordinary span of life. But supposing he should not, Mr. Hendricks, in accepting the nomination, puts himself upon the Democratic platform. He may, like Mr. Ferry, whom a Republican Senate made Vice-President, have enteriained loose notions of money; he may, like Mr. Morton, one of the leading candidates at Cincinnati, have given in unduly to a transient hallucination of his State; he may, like Mr. Sherman, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate, prefer greenbacks to bank notes; but whatever his views in these respects, he now stands up for the principles enunciated at St. Louis, which are henceforth the accredited creed of his party. Unless a thoroughly base and dishonest man, which no one has yet averred, he must abide by the policy to which he is so solemnly committed.

And now, appealing to every impartial member of the conference to dismiss his ancient party animosities and prejudices, I ask him to consider the words of our address describing the political situation, as I have just quoted them; I ask him to consider the demands it made of the Conventions and the character of candidate it presented, as a sine qua non; and then say which of the parties has most met the requirements. The Republican party, which is responsible for the greater part of the wide-spread demoralization, is substantially unchanged. It will be for the next four years what it has been for the past eleven years. A candidate chosen expressly for his neutral qualities will not direct its tendencies or infuse vigor or consistency into its councils. It leadership will continue to be, as heretofore, in the hands of its Blaines, its Conklings, its Mortons, its Camerons, its Logans, and its Kelleys. On the contrary, the Democratic party, abjuring its former errors, and rising to the full demands of the situation, puts itself into essentially new hands. Its standard-bearer, a sagacious, prudent, most accomplished statesman, inured to management and fresh from desperate conflicts with the enemies of pure government, has lifted it to a higher plane of faith, and will also lift it to a higher plane of practice. But he must be sustained by good men everywhere who sympathize in his objects. He has brought us the reinforcement of a mighty organization ready to adopt our cause and to fight our battle; can we turn it away? Can we sink back into the blindness of mere partisan feeling, neglect this glorious opportunity, which puts an overwhelming vote at our disposal, for the rescue of the Government? I do not see how there can be two answers; but be that as it may, I, who have for many years stood by this noble man, and been the eye-witness of his gallant fights with "the beasts at Ephesus," would be recreant to the labor and aspirations of my whole life not to lend him my heartiest support.

ROSLYN, L. I., July 18, 1876.

Centaur Liniments!

[Letter from a Postmaster.]

ANTIOCH, ILL., Dec. 1, 1874.

"Messrs. J. B. ROSE & Co.:

"My wife has, for a long time, been a terrible sufferer from Rheumatism. She has tried many physicians and many remedies. The only thing which has given her relief is Centaur Liniment. I am rejoiced to say this has cured her. I am doing what I can to extend its sale. ° ° ° W. H. RING.

This is a sample of many thousand testimonials received of wonderful cures effected by the Centaur Liniment. The ingredients of this article are published around each bottle. It contains Witch Hazel, Mentha, Arnica, Rock Oil, Carbolic, and ingredients hitherto little known. It is an indisputable fact that the Centaur Liniment is performing more cures of Swellings, Stiff Joints, Eruptions, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica, Caked Breasts, Lock-jaw, etc., than all other Liniments, Embrocations, Extracts, Salves, Ointments, and Plasters now in use.

For Toothache, Earache, Weak Back, Itch and Cutaneous Eruptions, it is admirable. It cures burns and scalds without a scar. Extracts poisons from bites and stings, and heals frost-bites and chilblains, in a short time. No family can afford to be without the Centaur Liniment, white wrapper.

THE CENTAUR LINIMENT, YELLOW WRAPPER, is adapted to the tough skin, muscles and flesh of the animal creation. Its effects upon severe cases of Spavin, Sweeny, Wind Gall, Big Head and Poll Evil, are little less than marvellous.

"In our neighborhood a number of teamsters are using the Centaur Liniment. They pronounce it superior to anything they have ever used. We sell as high as four to five dozen bottles per month to these teamsters."

We have thousands of similar testimonials. For Wounds, Galls, Scratches, Ring-bone, etc., and for Screw Worm in Sheep it has no rival. Farmers, Livery-men and Stock-raisers have in this Liniment a remedy which is worth a hundred times its cost.

Pitcher's Castoria!

Mothers may have rest and their babies may have health, if they will use Castoria for Wind Colic, Worms, Feverishness, Sore Mouth, Croup or Summer Complaints. It is entirely a vegetable preparation, and contains neither mineral, morphine, nor alcohol. It is as pleasant to take as honey, and neither gags nor gripes.

Dr. E. Dimoch, of Dupont, O., says:

"I am using Castoria in my practice with the most signal benefits and happy result."

This is what everyone says. Most nurses in New York City use the Castoria. It is prepared by Messrs. J. B. ROSE & Co., 46 Dey St., New York, successors to Samuel Pitcher, M.D. jy27-3m1

We beg leave to inform the residents of Woodland and Yolo County that we have bought the entire business belonging to B. JOSEPH. We have determined to bring this house up to its former standard—that is, make it again the store for the people, which reputation it has earned by its fair and honest dealings. Thanking our patrons and friends for the liberal patronage they have bestowed on this house in the past, we solicit a continuance of the same and remain your humble servants,

D. WARREN'S YERBA BUENA BITTERS

GUARD AGAINST DISEASE.—Don't wait until disease has fastened its fangs upon you and you are prostrated upon a bed of suffering, before you take measures to guard against the usual malarial influences of the summer months. If you have not already in the house a bottle of the celebrated Yerba Buena Bitters, send at once to your druggist and procure one. A few doses of this unequalled cathartic and regulator will cleanse the stomach and bowels like a charm, purify the blood and place the system in a condition to resist the attacks of disease. We say this advisedly. We have been using the Yerba Buena Bitters for over a year as a simple corrective, and find it invaluable. It is a friend that we would not like to be deprived of.
